Cost escalation of admiral Gorshkov

2526. DR. K. MALAISAMY: Will the Minister of DEFENCE be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Indo-Russian deal for the aircraft carrier-Admiral Gorshkov (Rechristened as INS Vikramaditya) scheduled to be delivered in 2008, is likely to cost heavily beyond the commitment besides causing abnormal delay in delivery;

(b) if so, whom can this fault be attributed to India or Russia;

(c) how much cost escalation would occur; and

(d) whether the U.S. aircraft carrier USS Nimitz under U.S.-India defence deal, is likely to be decommissioned soon?

THE MINISTER OF DEFENCE (SHRI A.K. ANTONY): (a) to (d) The Russian side has submitted a revised Master Schedule indicating a delay in the project and an increase in price for repair and re-equipping of ex-Admiral Gorshkov. The process of the examination of the scope and necessity for additional work projected by Russian side has been initiated.

No verifiable information is available regarding whether USS aircraft carrier Nimitiz is likely to be decommissioned.
